Structural & Narrative Notes: Sonata Form with Intro-Break-Rush

Vocal Symphony "The Little Mermaid" embodies the concept of Sonata Form as Narrative Motherboard across a large-scale symphonic canvas. Rather than using conventional multi-thematic contrast, the entire drama is generated from a single primordial motivic cell, unfolded through mirror symmetry, chromatic mediant polarity, and a transfigured dynamic recapitulation.

Section	Measures	Thematic & Narrative Function	Harmonic Gravity
Introduction	mm. 1 - 8	Motivic Reservoir & Generative Rules: the only motive and mirror symmetry
Exposition: P-Zone	m. 9	The Sea World - Marina's world; until she meets the Sea Witch	Established in tonic (f minor)
Exposition: Dominant Pedal I	m. 31	Reveals the evilness of Sea Witch (and Snakes), and the sorrow of Sea People	Transition to A major
Exposition: S-Zone	m. 42	The Land World - Musically, it's the monothematic twin of Theme 1 (identical contour and accompaniment pulse)	Established in A major
Exposition: Closing Zone	m. 72	The Prince and his royal retinue escorting the mute Mermaid into the palace.
Development: Part I (Narrative)	m. 78	Narrative Crisis: The Fatal Misunderstanding
Development: Part II (Dramatic)	m. 105	Motivic Vortex: Motive-driven symphonic climax. The Sea King and sisters emerge from the waves, urging the Mermaid to slay the sleeping Prince.
Development: Dominant Pedal	m. 138	The Celestial Arrival: The knife cast into the sea; angels descend to receive the sacrificial soul.	From C to a sudden false resolution on C#
False Recapitulation	m. 163	The Angel's Prayer	Temporarily in f# minor
Recapitulation (Dynamic)	m .173	The Celestial World: Daughter of the Air; omission of Theme 1; direct dynamic recapitulation of Theme 2 in pure diatonicism (zero accidentals). Total spiritual transcendence.	Final resolution in F major
